Regents to pass on Amarillo ed. center

Establishment of a continuing education center in Amarillo and offices for the president and director of development will be considered Monday evening when West Texas State University's regents, including two new members, meet in Dallas.

A proposal in the regent's agenda calls for establishment of a center in Amarillo and authorizes President Lloyd I. Watkins to investigate a location for such a center in that city.

An informational item informs regents that "it could be advantageous if the offices for the director of development and the president were obtained in Amarillo."

The two moves would represent an unprecedented thrust into the university's main student drawing area, and would mark initial implementation of the stated theory of Dr. Watkins that university programs should meet the needs of all the residents of the area.

The regents are to meet at 6 p.m. Monday in the Marriott Motor Hotel in Dallas.

Two new regents are expected to be in attendance—T. L. Roach of Amarillo and C. Wallace Harrell of Gonzales.

They, along with incumbent Irby Carruth of Austin, were appointed Thursday to serve six-year terms on the board. Carruth was reappointed to a six-year term. It had been earlier incorrectly reported by the Amarillo media that former Amarilloan Jim Jenkins had been reappointed.

A spokesman for Gov. Dolph Briscoe told The News Roach is past president of the Panhandle Livestock Association and former president of the Texas and Southwest Cattle Raisers Association. He is currently president of the Tri-State Fair and a director of the Fort Worth Fat Stock Show.

Harrell, who is in the livestock business, is a member of the Texas and Southwest Cattle Raisers Association. He received his bachelor and masters degrees from Texas A&M.

Carruth, originally appointed to the board by then Gov. Preston Smith, is a retired public school administrator.

In the agenda proposal for establishment of a continuing education center, it is noted that Amarillo is the largest center of population in the area and that the university currently offers little in the way of continuing education.

Dolph Briscoe due here

Texas Gov. Dolph Briscoe is scheduled to be in Canyon in mid-November to speak at the annual meeting of the Panhandle Economic Program and to appear at the county Food and Fiber Appreciation Week activities.

County Agent John Brazzil said the Panhandle Economic Program will hold its annual meeting on the West Texas State University campus on Nov. 16 and Briscoe will speak at a 1:30 p.m. session.

County Judge Woody Pond said Briscoe is also scheduled to attend a portion of the Food and Fiber Appreciation Fair which will be conducted at Rex Reeves Elementary School.

The PEP is a group of Panhandle agriculture leaders who meet annually to work together to solve agriculture problems.

Buffaloes bop Lamar downstate

Beaumont—West Texas State University's Buffaloes pushed for 10 first half points and then put on a pair of monumental fourth quarter goal line stands to defeat Lamar University 13-0 here Saturday night before nearly 10,000 paying customers.

The Buffales used a pair of field goals, one for 26 yards and one for 40 yards by sophomore Bruce Wyre and a 63-yard drive which resulted in a touchdown and a conversion for their points.

After a scoreless first quarter, the Buffs drove within field goal range and Wyre converted on a 26-yarder to climax a 64-yard drive, covering 10 plays. That score came with 4:27 remaining in the half.

Don Nava and Tracy Dickson combined on a 40-yard pass play to start the touchdown drive late in the half. Nava's passing pushed the Buffs within scoring range and Mike Wartes entered the game at quarterback to climax the move. Wartes' entrance in the game spawned a change in offense for the Buffaloes, from the I formation to the wishbone. He faced a first down and goal at the five-yard line as time was running out.

Billy Pritchett, running at full speed, crushed to the four and scored on the next play with 16 seconds remaining in the half. Wyre added the conversion to make it 10-0. Pritchett, who led the Buffs in rushing with 55 yards in 14 carries, was at full strength after being injured in the Tulsa game, the season's second. He was in for 3 plays last week against Northern Illinois.

The Buffs pushed for their final score, going 50 yards in five plays as Wyre converted on a 40-yard field goal attempt with 5:08 remaining in the third quarter.

The defensive heroics took place in the fourth quarter when Lamar controlled the ball 11 of the 15 minutes.

With defenders Larry Bates, Tony Gorman, Larry Wiens, Walter Hibbler, John Ayers, David Herber and Bruce Davis standing out the Buffs halted Lamar pushes at their three and five yard lines.

The first Lamar push was carried on its way by a trio of costly penalties, one of which blanked out a Herber pass interception.

The shutout was the first in 27 games for West Texas State and the first for a Gene Mayfield coached Buffalo team. The last time West Texas shut out an opponent was in a 20-0 decision over Western Michigan in 1970.

The Buffs take off next week before hosting the Utah State Aggies Oct. 20 in a homecoming clash in Kimbrough Stadium.

The Buffs pushed their season record to 2-3 with the victory and broke a 3-game losing streak. They had fallen to Tulsa, North Texas and Northern Illinois after taking a season opener win over Drake.

West Texas trailed in first downs against Lamar, 12-16, but held an overall lead in yards gained. The Buffs gained 184 yards running to 94 for the losers while Lamar held a 125-76 edge in passing.

The Buffs gained all of their passing yardage in the first half as Nava completed 7 of 11 attempts, but the junior college transfer was incomplete on his only second half attempt.

Alternatives for Buffalo Lake dwindle; wells reconsidered

The committee studying the future of Buffalo Lake saw its alternatives dwindle in number Thursday night and reopened discussion on the possibility of digging wells to pump water into the plagued lake.

The seven-man committee heard reports from County Judge Woody Pond on the number of water impediments placed by farmers and ranchers on Tierra Blanca Creek which feeds the lake, and from Carroll Wilson on the feasibility of using playa lake water to replenish Buffalo Lake.

The use of playa lakes water for the lake was discounted by Wilson as not feasible based on information gathered from the Palo Duro Soil and Water Conservation District.

Wilson said only four or five playa lakes were of significant size and proper location to replenish the lake by ditching or piping.

And, following his presentation, Committee Chairman Jack Brandt said that all but one of the playa lakes recommended were now being used by farmers for irrigation water.

"Based on the information I've gotten and Jack's comments, I'd say this just isn't feasible," Wilson said.

Use of playa lakes was just one of four alternatives listed by the committee at a meeting two weeks ago. Another possibility, that of dredging a portion of Buffalo Lake to concentrate the available water in a smaller but more recreationally attractive area, was also examined Thursday night by the committee.

Wilson said he had talked with a representative of the Palo Duro Club who outlined costs the club incurred about 5 years ago when the club lake was dredged.

He said he was told the cost at that time was about 21 cents per cubic yard for dredging.

Board members speculated the price has probably doubled since that time, and noted that the 300,000 cubic yards dredged at the Palo Duro Club would not be an adequate amount for Buffalo Lake.

Robert Lord, regional engineer with the Panhandle Regional Planning Commission, said it might be possible to dredge a portion of the lake near the dam and then construct an earthen dyke to keep water in the southern portion of the lake for the use of geese which flock by the thousands to the lake each winter.

His recommendation was based on statements made by Bob West, who is in Canyon making a goose study for the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department.

West said if all the lake water was concentrated near the dam through dredging, the geese would not use the lake and might be forced to cut their journey south short, possibly flying to Two Buttes, Colo. rather than here.

He said geese will not go to the water if it is surrounded by high bluffs as the northern portion of Buffalo Lake is.

Wilson was instructed to determine current costs of dredging operations.

Pond presented information from the Texas Water Rights Commission which indicates there are 10 impediments to water on the Tierra Blanca Creek.

He was instructed by the committee to find out if the priorities for those impediments are before that of Buffalo Lake.

Lord proposed that the committee reopen investigation into the possibility of using well water to replenish Buffalo Lake. In a committee meeting two weeks ago, that alternative was tabled due to the scarcity in general of water for irrigation

Another set of queens vied Friday for the crown at Canyon High School to cap homecoming. Homecoming queen for 1973 is Sheryl Gunter, a blonde student who triumphed over Becky Basinger, Karon Tompkins, and Tracie Erwin.

Pond vows fight over revisions

County Judge Woody Pond, who vows a tenacious fight to save his office, is on the warpath again.

Pond, an outspoken critic of recent moves to erode power of Texas' county judges, has been appointed to a state-wide executive committee of the Texas County Judges and Commissioners Association, a committee to keep a close watch on the workings of the Texas Constitutional Revision Commission.

Pond returned from a meeting of the association last week convinced more than ever that through legislation or the revised constitution forces are working to eliminate the office of county judge and turn his duties over to licensed attornies.

The judge admits the formation of the committee is indicative of the feeling among Texas county judges that somebody is out to get them.

He said the appointment of the executive committee followed a report at the state meeting last week on the latest recommendation of the constitutional revision commission, a recommendation which would substitute today's county court system with a circuit court.

"The proposal is to leave the county commission with a county judge and four commissioners," he said. "But, all judicial powers would be taken away from the county judges and in the rural counties, a circuit judge would be appointed to take care of four or five counties."

The new judge would be an attorney and in larger counties, he'd operate as judge of the county court-at-law.

Pond, who is not a licensed attorney, said the circuit judge's salary would be paid from state funds and all fees and fines he collects would be returned to the state rather than the county.

That would mean, Pond said, a

City sewer plant effluent eyed to irrigate WT's Nance Ranch

The City of Canyon and West Texas State University are jointly studying the possibility of using effluent from the city's sewer plant to irrigate part of the Nance Ranch.

If the project is realized, the city sewer plant could give about 1 million gallons of water per day for use on the university-run ranch about six miles east of the city.

And, it would put to use water, relatively clean, which is not now being used for any significant purpose.

City Manager George Loudder said Friday the city and the WTSU School of Agriculture are studying the project and are awaiting word from various sources on federal aid to build a pipeline from the sewer plant to the ranch.

He said contact has been made with the Texas Water Quality Board, the state regulatory agency, concerning application for a federal grant for construction of the pipeline.

"At present," Loudder said, "they have said they are establishing a new set of guidelines for this type project. As soon as they are established they will be in to talk about it."

Loudder said federal funding through the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) has been available for projects identical to the one proposed by the city and university.

For example, the City of Hereford bought recently a farm to which their effluent is piped for irrigation purposes.

The funding for that project came through the EPA.

Some engineering for the pipeline has already been accomplished and indicates need for an underground pipeline.

Loudder said details on financing other than the pipeline and for fees which might be charged the university for the effluent have not yet been discussed.

The city currently has a discharge permit to let the sewer plant effluent run into Tierra Blanca Creek southeast of the city.

The quality of the water is closely eyed by city and state officials and the effluent must meet minimum state standards.

"It's probably the best water that goes into Tierra Blanca on the whole watershed," Loudder said. "It exceeds state standards by 1000 per cent easily."

After the water enters the creek from the sewer plant, it runs along the creekbed to join with the Palo Duro Creek northeast of Canyon. The sewer plant was constructed about five years ago. Fish have been seen living in the creek just below the point where sewer water is discharged into the creek.

"One reason we came up with this is that we'd like to see the water used constructively rather than being discharged into a dry stream," Loudder said. "We feel this puts it to a constructive use."

Loudder said it is probable that if federal funding cannot be worked out for the construction of pipeline the project will not be carried through.

"The EPA has been interested in this type project," he said.

City to examine gas co. rejection

City Manager George Loudder will recommend that city commissioners deny a request by Pioneer Natural Gas Co. that the city allow monthly gas cost adjustments which could ultimately mean a rate increase for Canyon consumers.

Loudder said last week he will recommend that the commission deny the request and also join with the West Texas Utilities Commission in anticipation of Pioneer's appeal to the Texas Railroad Commission.

The recommendations Loudder will make are identical to recommendations issued Thursday night by a four-man committee studying the Pioneer proposal. The committee was formed informally by several cities on the Pioneer service line.

Loudder and City Commissioner J. Pat Stephens attended the Thursday session and Stephens has been appointed member of a 12-man committee to prepare for action which may come if Pioneer, faced with denials from cities on its pipeline, goes to the Railroad Commission to plead its case.

Recommendations made Thursday night and which will be passed on by Loudder to local commissioners are:

*that the city commission continue to abide by an agreement

School is out Tuesday here

Students in the Canyon Public Schools will receive an early dismissal at 2:30 p.m. Tuesday so that their instructors may work on committee reports for a massive self-evaluation program now in progress for the entire city school system.

Enrollment down in ROTC units

While overall ROTC enrollment in colleges and universities is declining, there is some room for optimism, says Col. Paul Fletcher, who is coordinator of ROTC activities in Texas.

Fletcher, who is stationed at Fort Riley, Kan., visited the West Texas State University ROTC detachment last week, a detachment which has seen its enrollment drop from a high of more than 300 during the Vietnam War to a low of 46 this semester.

Fletcher said male enrollment in ROTC in an 8-state area of the South and Southwest is down 15-20 percent this fall, but in several schools the enrollment is on the uphill climb.

The elimination of an active draft was listed by Fletcher as the primary reason for the drop in enrollment.

How does he think that can be countered?

"There are a long list of things," he said. "It begins right in the home."

The Army, he said, must become more acceptable to the American public in general. The Vietnam War end has helped on that front.

In addition, ROTC detachments must actively recruit on a one-to-one basis the 'Abundance' a misnomer

Last year, they called it "Food and Fiber Abundance Week."

Now, apparently this country's economic condition has spurred a name change.

"Since our last contact with you the name has been changed in that the word 'abundance' has been replaced with the word 'appreciation,' " says the memo from the Texas Food and Fiber Appreciation Month chairman to local chairman County Judge Woody Pond.

"This was done because of some food shortages in late August and early September. Appreciation may be more appropriate since food and fiber will never be abundant to some people."

The week will be observed in Canyon and surrounding area in mid-November.

Our World

A Good Shepherd

By ANN BROWN

The tragedy in the Lubbock church last Sunday night sounds like an episode straight out of Malachi. The last prophetic voice before the coming of the Christ complained bitterly of the sorry state of religious worship.

And the prophet was not complaining about the heathen who rejected God completely; he was condemning the people of God who came faithfully to the temple to worship.

Malachi, along with Jeremiah, Ezekiel, and the other prophets, blamed the priests for the decay of religious worship. Jesus condemned the religious leaders of His day as a generation of vipers and hypocrites. Apparently, He made no attempt to reach the priests at all.

When Hosea scored the wickedness of God's people in his time, he accused the priests of being the ringleaders.

God's people are much the same wherever they are. Throughout the Bible, they are compared to sheep.

That is not, in many ways, a flattering analogy. True, sheep are gentle creatures; they are also helpless, defenseless, and rather stupid. They will, however, follow a good shepherd anywhere. Many of them will even follow a bad shepherd.

A flock of sheep always has at least one leader within the ranks. If they have no shepherd, or if he is not meeting their needs, the leader takes over. But unless this is purely a temporary measure, it always leads to trouble. Sheep must have a good shepherd if they are to survive.

A small, half-time country church on the south plains, which had been led by young ministerial students since it was organized, became notorious for firing the pastor every year.

Eventually, the church called an experienced, learned, consecrated man as pastor. He heard, of course, of the fate of the former ministers. The morning he accepted the church, he said, "You will never need to fire me. If there is just one member of this church who does not want me here — and I find it out — I won't be back tonight."

Then he preached from Luke 9:51-56. He reminded the church that a Christian pastor should lead his congregation to follow Christ. And the example Jesus set was to move on when He was not wanted.

"Jesus never resisted," the pastor said. "He avoided conflict if possible, but He did not fight back — even when they crucified Him."

He said the Good Shepherd knew that He could not lead a flock where they did not want to go.

And true to his word, when that pastor made a suggestion the church did not approve, he never pushed. But he evidently did a lot of praying.

That contentious little church was soon united. It became full-time, with the highest per-capita giving in the district. When the pastor resigned eight years later, because he was forced to move to the coast, there was not a dry eye in the congregation.

And the tiny, one-room church building has grown into probably the largest, most spacious country church in Texas.

But instead of dividing the church, that pastor led the people to unite in Bible study, humility, love, and service.

According to the newspaper report, the Lubbock church was divided over the issue of leaving the Southern Baptist Convention.

Beginning with the First Baptist Church in Ft. Worth, dissenting pastors have divided many Southern Baptist churches. And where they could control the majority of the membership, they have kept the buildings, and taken the churches out of the Convention.

Not a very pretty picture. It is, however, not as bad as the ones painted by the prophets in the Old Testament.

As long as a shepherd will feed, lead, and protect his flock, they will grow, multiply, and prosper. But when he starves the sheep, divides, and attacks them, only God can save the flock.

Canyon Jr. Varsity Beats Clovis 27-12

The undefeated Canyon Junior Varsity added another win to the record with a 27-12 victory over Clovis.

First quarter action saw a 30 yard pass from Allen Shankles to Eric Van Pelt for the TD with Rusty Holliday kicking the extra point.

Rusty Holliday scored two more touchdowns in the second quarter with a 4 and 5 yard play and then tacked the extra point on.

In the third quarter, Eric Van Pelt recovered a fumbled punt in the end zone for the score but the extra point failed, making the score Canyon 27, Clovis 0.

Clovis scored in the third quarter and made the extra point and scored again in the fourth quarter on a pass play. Failure to make that extra point made the final score 27-12.

Leading ground gainers on offense were Rusty Holliday 69 yards, Kenny Nasinger 54 yards, Don Thompson 53 yards, and Stan Prichard 45 yards.

Rusty Holliday 15, Lyndon Brazile 10, Kenny Nasinger 9, and Stan Prichard 6, led the defense on tackles.

Pass interceptions were made by Lyndon Brazile with a 30 yard run, and another 45 yard run was called back on a clipping penalty.

Fumble recoveries were made by Eric Van Pelt, Rusty Holliday, Stan Prichard, Bob Lee, and Jimmy Foil.

Most valuable offensive players of the week were Eric Van Pelt, lineman, and Rusty Holliday, back.

Jimmy Foil, lineman, and Lyndon Brazile, back, got the vote for most valuable defensive players.

The next game will be against Lefors Jr. Varsity Saturday at 7:30.

The Majority Dictators

By CARROLL WILSON

The concept of a "silent majority," as promulgated by President Nixon and his administration is one of the most dangerous to emerge in American history.

The theoretical concept upon which this country's form of government was founded through the Constitution is, in fact, at odds with the concept of a silent majority. That early concept held that factionalism in a society is beneficial. Factions can be played against one another to achieve balance and a certain amount of stability.

Eliminate factions under the American system and you have, in fact, a dictatorship of the majority. And, whether or not the Constitutional superstructure still exists, a majority dictatorship is antithetical to a truly equal and just society.

But, when President Nixon and Spiro Agnew took office five years ago, they set out to establish at least the guise of a silent majority. Working under the proposition that those who are not against me are for me, Nixon and Agnew set about to mold a "silent majority," and pointed to that silence as indication of acceptance and approval.

The myth of the silent majority has, however, become engrained in the basics of the Nixon administration. While his critics hammer away — and there are plenty of critics — Nixon apparently honestly believes that because people remain silent they approve what he is doing.

In further efforts to stabilize the silent majority in his corner, Nexon unleashed Agnew in an unprecedented assault on the nation's press. This is a well-known and effective tactic to stabilize a mass. Give them a common enemy, an internal evil which must be chained and controlled. Center their animosity on one target. Promote "we're the good guys-they're the bad guys" polarization.

While the silent majority may have been a unification technique for the President, I'm afraid he came to believe his own propaganda — actually professing faith in a great silent mass which approves his every move by silence.

Silence became a mandate.

But, if the majority is silent, some administration officials must have also had the fear that that silence could work against Nixon in the 1972 election. Silence, after all, could be interpreted to mean the majority supported McGovern.

A nagging paranoia prompted officials in the Nixon administration, who unlike their boss were unsure of the support implied in silence by the majority, to break into the Watergate to ensure a solid Republican victory.

Now, Spiro Agnew, self-professed hero of the silent majority, wraps himself in innocence, and apparently believing that silence in the majority is also indication of naivete, proclaims himself not guilty, proclaims loudly he will not resign.

Again, the appeal is to a silent mass and again the approach is to turn "us" against "them." This time the villain is not the press — the great internal enemy is the justice department.

Through their belief in some kind of divine right to rule, a right granted them by a great silent majority, the President and Vice President are making a shambles of American institutions, the President and Vice President have sought and are seeking to ensure a majority dictatorship with them at the helm.

The institutions threatened — some already damaged — include the press and thus the Constitution, the Congress, the Justice Department, the CIA, the FBI and most of all the Presidency and Vice Presidency themselves.

The press, while certainly it should not be free from criticism, has been injured by the administration, injured in its right to explore for news unhindered by government interference. If freedom of the press is abridged by the chief executive, what of the other rights contained in the same paragraph of the First Amendment — what of freedom of speech, freedom of assembly. An abridgement of one is of necessity an abridgement of all, because the framework for abridgement is established.

If freedom of the press can be damaged through extra-constitutional methods, by creating and then appealing to a silent majority, how safe are other other freedoms?

The Congress for a year has been in locked-horn battle with the President as he, again for the good of the silent majority, refuses to appropriate funds allocated by the Congress.

The Justice Department, itself a part of the executive branch, is now the most visible victim of the President and Vice President's apparent compulsion toward self-destruction. The Vice President has made crystal clear the inconsistency of the administration in his problems with a federal grand jury.

While Nixon pleads the Watergate affair be removed from Congress and placed in the courts, his right-hand man pleads that his accusors move from the stage of the courts into Congress.

Court action against the justice department based on Agnew's charges the department is out to get him due to bungling of the Watergate, can do no good for the image of that department.

Need we point out the absolute damage done the CIA and FBI by their implication as tools of the President or his underlings in illegal activities?

Finally, the President and Vice President, by their aloofness, their efforts to create a majority dictatorship, have in the minds of many people scarred those high offices. If the personal conduct of the President and Vice President is not proved blemished by Watergate and the Maryland scandals, their recalcitrant and belligerent efforts to undermine American institutions are enough of themselves to illustrate the damage to the Presidency and Vice Presidency which accompanies a general lack of faith or generation of a cynical attitude that all politicians are corrupt.

The Nixon administration must go down in history as an administration which has done more than any other in American history to set asunder the cherished ideals proposed in 1789.

Fish 'n Foul

By GARY CONNER

In south Texas for the last few years, a storm of angry voices have been heard concerning the short-stopping of waterfowl, especially geese, at the numerous northern wildlife refuges. By short-stopping, I mean the artificial feeding and open-water operations that are carried on to entice geese and ducks to stay in a certain area that they would not normally winter in. In short, the geese are fed, and the lakes are kept from freezing completely over to keep the birds from migrating out of their area on down to their normal wintering grounds, specifically, Texas, for example.

This practice has been lessened, somewhat, because of disease outbreaks that have occurred in these high waterfowl concentration areas, and also because interested hunters in Texas and Louisiana have caused enough ruckus to get something done. The agreement last year was to disperse the birds and send them on their way around the middle of December so they would migrate on down. I don't know what the deal is this year.

Generally speaking, I can think of sound reasons why this practice is wrong and should be stopped. Tampering with the natural migration of birds being at the top of the list.

Specifically speaking, I'm wondering about the lesser Canada goose population in the Texas Panhandle that seems to be getting lesser and lesser. Are these birds, too, being slowed down or stopped in the refuges in Colorado and the other mountain states? It could stand some thinking about!

Ron Mills, son of Canyon High School head coach, Ron Mills, recently went on a dove hunting trip in the rough country down near Turkey. He learned something that quite a few hunters find out the hard way. He had put down a dove and was going to retrieve it when he came face to face with a rattlesnake. In his effort to outmaneuver the snake, he almost stepped on another one. He left the dove, the snake, and that part of the country and came home, to Canyon, where we're safe from those intruders. Huh!

Moral: Where there is one snake, there's probably two, three, maybe even a den.

Auodad sheep season in the Panhandle opens Nov. 10 and runs through the 16th. Deer season, in the Panhandle, opens the day after the sheep hunters have spooked most of the deer into the next county. That's fine though, I like a little challenge. I don't like to hunt anything which isn't expecting me. Deer season is Nov. 17 through Dec. 2. Two bucks can be killed, but no more than one buck mule deer and no more than one buck white-tail deer.

Fourteen Coeds Compete For Miss WTSU Title

Fourteen West Texas State University coeds compete for the title of Miss WTSU in the 4th annual pageant Saturday night.

The talent and beauty contest, affiliated with the Miss Texas Pageant and sponsored by the WTSU student body, will be at 8 p.m. in the Canyon High School auditorium.

Last week the contestants participated in a Miss WTSU Workshop conducted for the first time.

"The pageant committee, plus past Miss WTSUs and runners-up conducted the workshop to help the women with their stage appearance, walking and other things," said Vicki Foster, pageant director.

In the past, Miss Foster said, the contestant who had never been in a beauty contest before had only her courage with which to walk out on the stage.

"Girls who had been in the pageant before felt this workshop would be a great help," she said. "Cosmetologists and beauticians came in to show the women what kind of makeup looks good on the stage under the lights and other helpful hints."

Various changes have been made in the pageant during the year, Miss Foster says.

"We have always had the pageant in the Activities Center Ballroom," she said, "but we are moving it to the Canyon High School auditorium because of seating capacity and permanent stage facilities."

One major change in the pageant is the one-day competition instead of two days of judging as in the past.

The reason for the change is to let the Miss Texas judges narrow the field for the final competition, she said.

"In the past, we have had local judges do the preliminary judging," she said. "However, we feel that the professional judges would rather do the preliminaries themselves as they pick the final winner."

The reigning Miss Texas, Judy Mallett of Haltom City, will be one of the featured performers at the pageant.

Other participants in last summer's Miss Texas contest are also scheduled to be here. They include the current Miss WTSU, Deltah Roberts of Tulia; Miss Hereford, Sandy Caison; Miss Fort Worth, Becky Ward; Miss South Texas, Diane Boyd; and Miss Wayland Baptist, Babs Tatum.

Winner of the contest will receive a $1,000 wardrobe scholarship from The Hub in Amarillo. The Hub will also sponsor and help train Miss WTSU 1973 for the Miss Texas pageant to be held in Fort Worth next summer.

Miss WTSU and the three runners-up will act as official university hostesses in appearances on and off campus during the year.

Tickets are on sale at the Activities Center on campus. Admission is $1 for WTSU students and $2 for non-students.

Arts and entertainment through the looking glass

By ANN MELIN

West Texas State University's week-long repertory theater performances culminate today with a matinee of "Sunday Excursion" and "Man For All Seasons," slated at 2 p.m. in the Branding Iron Theatre.

Seeing the WTSU drama production of "Seasons" on Thursday, I was favorably impressed by the high degree of excellence that each of the BIT actors brings to his or her role in this Robert Bolt masterpiece.

Travis Dean, an actor one can always count on to turn in an outstanding performance, cuts a fine figure on stage as Thomas More, whose enormous proportions of character effectively dwarf the easier sensibilities of those around him.

While the film version of "Seasons" stands out as an outstanding exponent of historical drama, the play breaks out of the bounds of its setting in Tudor times and encompasses the whole course of human history.

The reason for the play's broader dimensions is the omnipresence of the Common Man, a character stricken from the film version who serves as a kind of liaison between the audience and the characters on stage.

With the easy-going philosophy that "it's better to be a live rat than a dead lion," the Common Man flows comfortably through the stagnant stream of political events of the period. Self-described as "a plain and simple man," he becomes in the course of affairs, the betrayer, juror, jailer and executioner of that giant of selfhood, Thomas More.

Author Robert Bolt found the character of the Common Man problemmatical since it seemed that on stage his base, pot-bellied pragmatism seemed to alienate viewers who were actually supposed to identify with his familiar "Don't rock the boat" philosophy.

Watching the BIT production, which features Harrell Floyd in the Common Man, one wonders how Bolt could have had any misgivings about the character's effectiveness on stage. Floyd's Common Man is delightfully course and humorous, yet at the same time a bit sinister.

Supporting actors and actresses also turn in some powerful performances in the BIT production. Cindy Newman is outstanding in her portrayal of More's fiercely-loving wife, Alice. Ron Williams is also convincing in his role of Richard Rich, the ambitious lackey who sells his soul for a ranking political position and seals Thomas More's fate with a lie.

Don Washburn is properly cynical and Machiavellian in his role of Thomas Cromwell, another "common man" who rises to power through his ruthlessly-efficient execution of the King's business.

Tickets for the final performance of "Man For All Seasons," are available at the Branding Iron Theatre box office.

To fully understand what Voltaire was talking about when he declared that "history is only a pack of tricks we play on the dead," those who saw "Man For All Seasons" this week might sit in on "Anne of the Thousand Days," a film to be presented at 8 p.m. Thursday in the Activities Center ballroom.

Although the Lady Ann Boleyn didn't appear on stage in "Seasons," one feels her presence in the play — and a rather malignant presence it is, too. Cardinal Wolsey speaks of her as if she's nothing more than a glorified breeding cow when he tells Thomas More that the "thing out there is at least fertile."

Conceding, however, to the popular appeal of the second wife of Henry VIII, the makers of the film version of "Seasons" created a cameo appearance for the damsel in the screen production. But it's a boozy, sluttish Anne, bleary-eyed from an evening's revel with the King, who fleetingly appears in the film version.

It's a different Anne who comes to life in the film based on the Sherwood Anderson play which will be presented this week on the WT Student Activities Council's fall series.

Oh, this Anne is hardly a paragon of virtue. She's canny enough to know that the blustering King Henry is the sort of guy who takes more pleasure in the hunt than the capture. She's a virtuouso player of the age-old waiting game — dangling her favors before the smitten king at every occasion, but holding back on the ultimate one until His Majesty should see fit to make an honest woman of her by placing a crown on her head.

This Anne is stubborn and ambitious, too. And yet. . . well, she's just downright likeable. Watching the film, I found myself hoping that Anderson would use his poetic license in granting the vibrant Anne a reprieve from her historical fate at the chopping block.

The rather grim-looking Holbein portrait of Anne Boleyn has often made me wonder whether a different aesthetic governed in matters of female pulchritude in Tudor times. But when Genevieve Bujold steps into the role of Anne in the film, it's easier to see why Henry went on his rampage against the medieval church that refused to countenance his match with the lady.

The Canadian actress is hardly beautiful, but she possesses a gamin-like charm that could quite plausibly bowl over a sovereign. And it wouldn't be the first time for her, either. Several years ago, she wove a similar spell over the French Dauphin (played by Roddy McDowell) when she played the title role in Bernard Shaw's "Joan of Arc" in a Hallmark Hall of Fame television production.

Richard Burton is adequate in the role of Henry VIII, although his rendering of the Tudor King is less inspired than the one television viewers saw in a BBC production of "The Six Wives of Henry the Eighth" two years ago.

A classical-turned-rock musician has also tried some sleight-of-hand tricks with a full house of Tudor queens.

Rick Wakeman, a masterful musician formerly of the rock group, Yes, recently released an album in which he gives his subjective musical impressions of the six wives of Henry VIII.

With the help of a Moog synthesizer, Wakeman achieves some hauntingly beautiful musical sounds in an opus that brings his musical backgrounds in classical, rock and jazz to form an idiom all of its own.

Portraits accompanied with short narrative biographies of the wives are provided for the listener on the back of the album cover.

Since the six musical portraits of the wives aren't in order of their succession to the crown, that handy little verse, "divorced, beheaded, died/divorced, beheaded, survived," won't serve in figuring out which piece belongs to which wife. The adventurous armchair historian of the period, however, will want to play the record before looking at the titles to see if his mental picture of each wife fits Wakeman's musical one.

And if the two don't jive, it's probably because the listener and the performer are just playing with different packs. That's all.

Violinist Donald Todd Featured In Recital

Dr. Donald Todd, associate professor of music at West Texas State University, will be featured in a violin recital at 3 p.m. next Sunday.

Todd's performance is the third in the fall series of faculty recitals in the Branding Iron Theatre of the Fine Arts Building on the Canyon campus. The recital is free to the public.

He will be accompanied on piano by Janice Schmutzer, wife of WTSU political science professor Eduard Schmutzer, and Bill Evans, a music faculty member.

Programmed for the recital are Bach's "Concerto in A Minor for Violin and Piano," andante movement, Debussy's "La Plus Que Lente," Kreisler's "Caprice Viennois, Op. 2," Saint-Saens' "Sonata for Violin and Piano, Op. 75," in the allegro agitato movement, and Beethoven's "Sonata in G Major for Violin and Piano, Op. 96."

There are four movements to this major work by Beethoven, Todd says. They are allegro moderato, adigio espressivo, scherzo and poco allegretto.

"Beethoven's Opus 96 is on the borderline between the second and third periods of his style development," Todd says. "When he composed this piece, he was nearing the period of spiritual contemplation in his life that refined his style."

Todd, who came to WTSU in 1967, also serves as concertmaster of the Amarillo Symphony.

Following the recital, a reception for the artist will be held in the formal lounge of the Fine Arts Building.

Jr. High Purple And White Teams Have 3 Wins-1 Loss

The Purple and White teams of the 8th and 9th grades of Canyon Jr. High School had three wins and one defeat in this week's play.

In the 9th grade Purple team vs. Hereford Stanton, game the final score was 24-18.

Second quarter action consisted of a 2 yard gain for the score from Ricky Cooper with Joe Luquette making the two extra points giving Canyon 8 and Hereford 0 at half-time.

Ricky Cooper scored again in the third quarter with Ronny Whitney making two more.

In the fourth quarter, Joe Luquette made a 70 yard play for the TD and Ronny Whitney scored two extra points, giving Canyon 24.

Outstanding Offensive linemen were Darrel Chandler and David Johnson. Joe Luquette took the honors for offensive back with 188 yards to his credit.

Drew Aetzler was outstanding defensive lineman and Jonathan Hull was voted defensive back.

The Purple team is 2-0 in district play.

Boys Ranch defeated the 9th grade White team with a final score of 12-36.

Scores were made in the first quarter with a pass from Allan Rozelle to Mark Sullivan for 60 yards and in the fourth quarter on a 7 yard run by Dwight Byrd.

Outstanding offensive lineman was Clifford Adams and Gary Ward took the honors for offensive back.

Robert Byrd got the vote for outstanding defensive lineman and Mark Sullivan for defensive back.

Gary Ward was outstanding game player.

In the 8th grade Purple vs. Pampa Red, the Canyon team emerged victorious, with a final score of 18-14.

Scores came in the second quarter with Edwin Dillehay making 33 yards, and in the third quarter with Billy Holladay making 50 yards, and then 45 yards to get him the honor of being outstanding game player.

Tab Keener took the nod as outstanding offensive lineman and Edwin Dillehay was named for offensive back.

On defense, linemen honored were Vince Price and Edwin Dillehay, with Robert Dustman as outstanding back.

Fumbles were recovered by Steve LaGrone and Monte Harrison.

The 8th grade Purple team won over Hereford LaPlata with a score of 36-0.

Scoring came in the first quarter with Robert Scott making 30 yards on the second play of the game. David McKay made another 50 yards for a score and then tacked on two extra points, with a three yard gain.

Second quarter action saw David McKay score again with 2½ yards and make two points with three yards gained.

In the third quarter, Robert Scott scored with 3 yards, and McKay scrambled 3 yards for the extra points.

Brent Anderson made the final Canyon score in the fourth on a 13 yard pass, giving Canyon a total of 36 and Hereford 0.

Robert Scott was named outstanding game player and special awards went to Joe Watkins with a blocked kick and fumble recovery, Stan Cranmer with a blocked punt and fumble recovery, and David McKay and Ches Boatick with fumble recoveries.

Stan Cranmer and Randy Burhkukl were cited as outstanding offensive linemen, and Robert Scott and David McKay took honors as offensive backs.

On defense, Jay Morrison was chosen as outstanding lineman, and Robert Scott got the vote for back.

Total yards rushing were 378, David McKay gained 193, Robert Scott 141, and David Tate 20.

District record for the team is 2 wins-2 losses.

LaPlata did not penetrate the Canyon 20 yard line the entire game.

Evening Lions Club Honored By Visit From District Gov.

The Evening Lions Club was honored Monday night by having the District Governor, Lion William T. (Bill) McMinn, as guest speaker.

Lion McMinn spoke about the need for more help to be given to Lions Club projects, such as Girls Town, the Crippled Children's Camp, and the High Plains Eye Bank.

Anyone interested in becoming a Lion is invited to attend the meetings held each Monday night at the Village Inn at 7 p.m.

Lion David Hunt presided over the meeting in the absence of the president, Lion Kenneth Denny, who is in Ft. Collins, Colo. attending school for the week.

Mrs. Moore Hostesses Priscilla Club Members

Mrs. Florine Moore was hostess to the Priscilla Club recently in her home. She served a dessert course with coffee and ten to her guests.

Those present were Mesdames Clay Cooper, A. M. Cunningham, H. A. Goodman, W. M. Haggard, Tom Knighton, Gladys Marshall, Bailey McCormick, Dudley Moore, Sr., Kelly McGehee, T. S. Stevenson, Sr., M. J. Noel, and D. M. Foster.

WTSU Geologist Due Tech Speech

Dr. George B. Asquith, West Texas State University geologist, will address the Texas Tech University geology society, Sigma Gamma Epsilon, at 3:30 p.m. Oct. 16.

Asquith was graduated with honors from Texas Tech in 1961 and was a member of the geology society while an undergraduate.

His topic will be the petrogenesis of tertiary camptonites and associated diorites of the Sacramento Mountains in South Central New Mexico.

Camptonites and diorites are igneous rocks that are chemically similar but texturally different, Asquith said.

Industrial Assoc. Aids WT Students

The West Texas Industrial Association, better known as WTIA, on the West Texas State University campus, is seeking new members and invites interested parties to a meeting to be held Wednesday at 7 a.m. in the Applied Science Building on the WTSU campus.

This student organization was founded last spring and meets twice a month. The main function of the organization is to create a rapport between the students and faculty in the Industrial Education Department.

An advisory committee made up of people in industry works closely with the students and faculty in the department to help them keep pace with the demands of the industrial world. This committee also aids students in job placement after graduation.

Gourmet Dinner Slated

Chicken kiev will be the elegant entree' Shakespeare at his wittiest will be the after-dinner treat at a supper for Wives, Etc., scheduled at 7:30 p.m. Saturday at the Canyon Country Club.

An 'epicurean' meal, prepared by the Canyon Gourmet Group, will begin with sangaree punch, and be followed by a menu of borscht, chicken kiev, rice pilaf, green bean amandine and parfait.

Providing the musical background for the candlelight dinner will be students and faculty members of the West Texas St3te University music department.

Highlighting the after-dinner entertainment will be a reader's theatre performance by veteran Branding Iron Theatre performers Travis Dean and Cindy Newman. Programmed are humorous passages from the works of William Shakespeare.

Dean and Miss Newman are currently starring in WTSU repertory theatre productions of 'Man For All Seasons' and 'Scapin,' final performances of which are slated at 2 p.m. today in the BIT.

The gourmet dinner will be catered at a charge of $4.25 per person, a Wives, Etc. spokesman said. Persons interested in attending the event are asked to contact Ann Asquith, Sophia Duman or Sandy Sparling sometime before Monday evening.

Eagles Fall 21-7 To Pampa Team

A Canyon Eagle defense, tenacious during its first half, virtually fell apart in the second half Friday night as Pampa's Harvesters downed the Eagles in a homecoming battle 21-7.

The defenders held Pampa to seven first downs and just seven points during the first half as Canyon and the Harvesters went to the halftime dressing room with a tied-up ball game.

But, consistent pounding through the left side of the Eagle defensive line by Pampa runners provided equally consistent ground yardage as the visitors tallied two more scores during the second half for the win.

The Eagles now stand with 1 win and four losses for the season.

Friday night's outing began with a strong Canyon offensive effort which stopped short of paydirt on the Pampa 1-yard line.

Moving from their own 20, the Eagles moved in 15 plays deep within Pampa territory.

An Ed Lair pass to Garry LaGrone was good for 19 yards and put the Eagles on the Pampa 2-yard line with a first down.

But, the tough Pampa defense held as first Jimmy Ward and then Gary Bednorz tried again and again through the center of the line.

All efforts failed and the ball went over to Pampa on the one.

Late in the second quarter, Pampa finally got a range on the ball after quarterback Rick Leverich snagged a Lair aerial and ran to his own 44 yard line.

That interception set the stage for a seven-play drive which ended with Quarterback Chuck Quarles, a 113-pound starter, scooting around left end for the first Pampa score.

The kick was good and with 4:42 remaining in the half, Pampa led by 7-0.

An unusual penalty play on the ensuing kick-off gave the Eagles excellent field position at the Pampa 24. A Lair pass to Brad Martin for 16 yards placed the ball on the three-yard line and four plays later, Lair passed to LaGrone for six yards and the score.

Just a minute remained in the tie ball game with the Eagles and Harvesters tied 7-7.

Pampa came back from the dressing room with the Eagle offense well in mind and a fired-up defense.

On their first possession of the ball, they drove 60 yards in 13 plays to get close enough to the goal line to try a field goal. The 19-yard effort was no good and the Eagles took over with 4:29 remaining in the third quarter only to have a Lair pass intercepted two plays later on the 20.

One play later and the Eagles were again in possession as Steve McCormick came down with an intercepted Quarles aerial.

After a series of downs which saw the Eagle offense bogged down at mid-field, the Harvesters again took possession this time to hammer the left side of the Eagle line in almost all of their 11 plays.

With 5:47 remaining in the game, the Harvesters Chuck Reeves crossed paydirt from two yards out to put the Pampans ahead 14-7.

Again the Eagles found they couldn't move the ball and with less than two minutes on the clock the Pampans again took the ball, this time on their own 38.

In seven plays they moved the 65 yards to score on a Reeves run for seven yards with :00 showing on the clock. Again the kick was good and with the game ended the Eagles had lost 21-7.

The Eagles could muster only 62 yards in the second half and ended the game with 191 total yards compared to 261 for the Harvesters.

Bednorz was leading ground gainer with about 40 yards, followed by Ward with 25 and Adman Foil with 22.

The Eagles were plagued by penalties during the second half, tallying six penalties compared to two for Pampa.

Canyon meets Palo Duro Dons at 7:30 p.m. Friday in Bivins Stadium in Amarillo.

Services For Mr. Akins

O. L. Akins, 72, of Happy was dead on arrival Friday at Nesbitt Memorial Hospital here.

Funeral services will be at 2 p.m. Monday in the Happy First Baptist Church with the Rev. Fred Hill, pastor, officiating. Burial will be in Wayside Cemetery by LaGrone Funeral Chapel.

Pallbearers are Dick Foster, Eddie Akins, James Mitchell, Bill Ashley, Thomas Hamilton, Mickey Perry and Gary Haywood.

Mr. Akins, a native of Grand Saline, moved to Wayside in 1924 and to Happy in 1941. He worked for the Hardaway Butane Co. for 10 years. He was a member of the First Baptist Church of Happy.

Survivors include his wife, Ruth; sons, Charles of Kindville and Tom of Mineral Wells; brothers, Bob of Dallas, E. O. of Maybank and Tom of Tyler; sisters, Mrs. Doris Litsey and Mrs. Rose McCants of Dallas, Mrs. Mae Carden of Phoenix and Mrs. Henrietta Taylor of Troup; and seven grandchildren.

Ministerial Assoc. Elects New Officers

Rev. David Meiber, pastor of St. Paul's Lutheran Church, was elected president of the Canyon Ministerial Association at a meeting held Tuesday noon at the Village Inn.

Rev. Meiber was elected on the basis of his activities in the community and church affairs while in Canyon.

Elected as secretary-treasurer was Rev. Donald Baldwin, assistant pastor of the First Baptist Church.

The Ministerial Association is an organization for spiritual action and fellowship of the ministers of Canyon. Membership to the needy and regular worship services at La Casa Nursing Home are the two major functions performed by the group.

Rev. Tash To Address PTA On Drug Awareness

Rev. Joseph T. Tash, Amarillo, will be the guest speaker at the Monday night meeting of the Canyon PTA in the Rex Reeves Auditorium at 7:30 p.m.

The program will be on drug awareness and education. Rev. Tash is noted in Amarillo and the Panhandle area for his work in drug rehabilitation. He has given in excess of 500 programs on drug Education to an approximate audience of 500,000.

From his first hand knowledge, Rev. Tash will tell the audience what 'symptoms' to look for to ascertain whether or not a person is using drugs. He will have pictures of the various types of pills and give information on what effects they have on the user. A demonstration on marijuana will enable those present to identify open parents' eyes to the facts about drugs, and to coordinate with an Art Linkletter film to be presented to the elementary school children in the next few weeks. These children are an easy mark for the pusher, because they don't know what they are getting into. We feel that by informing the parents, and showing the films to the children, we can keep them from ignoring the problem, said Ann Carlisle, PTA President.

Rod McKuen Due WT Appearance

Rod McKuen, craggy-faced weaver of wistful poems as popular as McDonald's hamburgers, will be talking of love, loneliness and life-in-general in a rap session slated Wednesday at West Texas State University.

McKuen, the best-selling poet of his own and all other ages, will appear at 8 p.m. in the Activities Center ballroom. His appearance is the second in the fall Special Programs series.

Performing about 80 concerts a year in which he recites his verse, sings his songs and just plain "raps," McKuen likes to remind his audiences that a critic once described his voice as "sounding like I gargled with Dutch Cleanser."

Combining a poet's sensibilities with a businessman's financial acumen, McKuen boasts a faithful following of millions, and yet has consistently gotten the cold shoulder from critics throughout the nation, one of whom dubbed him "a marshmallow poet."

The 40-year-old poet runs his own publishing and recording empire, working out of a small suite of offices on Hollywood's Sunset Strip.

In addition to his other activities, McKuen composes classical music that receives performance by major symphonies in the nation.

Pond. . .

loss to Randall County of revenue totalling more than $50,000 per year. Through Oct. 1, 1973, fines and fees he's collected total $46,000.

Pond also contends county taxpayers would be out even more money to finance an office and staff for a county court-at-law.

"The people of the county would be saddled with more tax burden in providing courtrooms for this extra court, a full-time court reporter and a staff," the judge said.

In addition, Pond noted that the people would also lose their say-so in who should and should not be the judge since the circuit court or court-at-law judge would be appointed rather than elected.

He views the efforts of the revision commission as just another step in the erosion of power of county judges who are not attornies.

Last summer, for example, the legislature passed a bill taking jurisdiction away from the county court on juvenile matters if the judge was not an attorney.

An amendment on the Nov. 6 special election ballot would further erode power of county judges, Pond said. The amendment calls for district courts to have concurrent power with county courts in matters in probate. But, the amendment also gives the legislature the power to declare which court should have that jurisdiction.

Pond said he opposes any efforts to take away the right of the people to select their county judge. And, he opposes any law which would further erode the power of the county judge.

"I think it's high time the county courts all over the state get better organized to correct and prevent the erosion of county government in the state of Texas," he said.

Texas Ranger Now Here

Canyon now has a resident Texas Ranger.

John Dendy, a native of Comanche County, is responsible for investigatory assistance in six Panhandle counties and headquarters in the Randall County sheriff's office in Canyon.

Dendy joined the Rangers Oct. 1.

Prior to that, he had been a highway patrolman for the Department of Public Safety for 17 years, stationed in Waco and Galveston Co.

As a Ranger, Dendy's job is to help law enforcement agencies in criminal investigations in Randall, part of Potter, Deaf Smith, Oldham, Armstrong and Donley Counties.

Dendy and his wife, Vinita, have a daughter, Kathy, in Canyon Junior High, and a son, Kirby, attending college in San Marcus.

They are making their home in Canyon.

Southside Baptist Greets New Pastor

Rev. Jimmy Deryl Rogers is the new pastor of the Southside Baptist Church, 2009 10th Ave.

He comes to Canyon from Weatherford, Tex., where he served as pastor of the Aenon Baptist Church. In Weatherford, he was sports writer for the daily newspaper, and served as managing editor for two weeks.

Churches he has served in are located in east, northeast, central and north central Texas.

Majoring in religion and minoring in sociology, he attended Jacksonville College and East Texas Baptist College.

purposes.

But, Lord noted that it might be possible to drill wells to the Santa Rosa formation, which is well under the Ogallala water formation.

He said apparently most irrigation wells and wells for civic use are drilled to take water from the Ogallala formation and drilling to the Santa Rosa might not interfere with irrigation operations.

Wilson said he will meet with geologists, primarily from West Texas State University, to determine the overall water situation in Randall County and to determine the impact taking water from the Santa Rosa formation might have on agriculture and civic use in the short and long term.

The committee discussed only briefly its only other stated alternative for getting water into Buffalo Lake — the piping of water from a Lake Meredith water line which runs east of Canyon.

Pond, who is primary exponent of that idea, struck a dismal note when he told committee members that if the pipeline were even feasible it might be unlikely any water would be released from Lake Meredith for use at Buffalo Lake.

But, he said he will continue investigating the proposal.

Regents. . .

The proposal says courses could be offered on the junior, senior and graduate level and non-credit courses, seminars and workshops could also be offered.

The regents are also expected to consider hiring of a university full-time legal counsel. The university is recommending the hiring of a woman attorney at a salary of $1000 per month.

In other business, the agenda provides for expected action on:

*a proposal to seek $53,000 through an emergency grant to rebuild the steel football fieldhouse which burned recently on campus.

*a proposal which would be the first step in renovation of the existing Science Building on campus for use by the departments of nursing and agriculture.

best of the high school graduating classes.

The ROTC detachments must continue to upgrade their course offerings to make them more intellectually challenging, more academically competitive.

In an effort to increase the numbers of students taking ROTC, Fletcher said the Army has reorganized its heirarchy and his unit is involved only with ROTC.

Thus, programs which work at one institution may be quickly identified and implemented at other institutions.

But, he says, the Army cannot go it alone in the recruitment field. Universities also have a role to play in increasing the number of students in ROTC and should view ROTC as another drawing card in an era of declining student enrollments in many colleges.

Lt. Col. John Childs, professor of military science at WTSU, has several proposals for university involvement in the local ROTC unit.

For openers, he points to the fact that the ROTC unit brings about $216,000 per year to the Canyon economy.

Then, he has recommended that the university president Dr. Lloyd I. Watkins personally endorce the ROTC program.

Further support from the university is needed, he says, in allowing planned participation by ROTC in freshman onentation, representation on the university recruiting committee, inclusion as part of the regular recruiting program presented by WTSU recruiters, and in placement of the ROTC detachment "in a more favorable atmosphere through facility upgrading or relocation."

with Pioneer to grant 100 per cent cost adjustment on an annual basis, but that the request by Pioneer for a monthly adjustment be denied "due to the fact that no emergency has been demonstrated."

*that a 12-man steering committee be empowered by resolution from the commission to prepare for such action as may be necessary and provide the necessary funds for appearances before the railroad commission.

Loudder said the second recommendation is based on the assumption that Pioneer will seek redress through the railroad commission when faced with denials.

Pioneer has requested that they be allowed to adjust costs on the price they must pay in the field for gas on a monthly basis rather than on an annual basis as now provided.

The company had asked that the adjustments begin on Oct. 1, but Loudder reported at a recent commission meeting that company officials agreed the date could be adjusted.

This marks the second time in about five years that a Pioneer request for rate adjustment has been met with opposition from cities on its pipeline. About four years ago, the company requested a gate rate increase which was fought by the cities.

City commissioners meet at 7 p.m. Oct. 15 in the community center.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Neal Peery
Bride formerly Jackie Denise Hayes

Couple Pledges Vows

Jackie Denise Hayes and Richard Neal Peery exchanged wedding vows recently at Dobbins Air Force Base Chapel, Marietta, Ga., with Chaplain Walter Koch officiating.

Mr. and Mrs. William Adams Jr., are the bride's parents.

The groom's parents are Rev. and Mrs. J. Frank Peery, Stratford, formerly of Canyon.

A reception followed the ceremony in the home of the bride's parents.

The bride is a June graduate of Cherokee County High School Canton, Ga.

The groom is a 1971 graduate of Canyon High School, received his U.S. Army basic training at Ft Jackson, Columbia, S.C., served a year in Korea, and is now stationed at Ft. Carson, Colo.

The couple is at home in Colorado Springs, Colo.

Floyds Welcome First Grandson

Mr. and Mrs. Larry Floyd, California, announce the birth of a son, Thomas Lawrence, born Sept. 28, weighing 6 lbs. 5 ozs. and measuring 21½ inches in length.

Maternal grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Lewis, Amarillo.

Paternal grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Calvin Floyd, Canyon.

Wedding Vows Solemnized

Pebbie Luquette and Mickey Comer were joined in marriage in a double ring ceremony held Sept. 14, at St. Ann's Catholic Church with Father Jack Gist officiating.

Dr. and Mrs. A. J. Luquette, Canyon, are the parents of the bride.

The groom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Lacye Comer, Canyon.

Jim Huxler, organist, provided nuptial music.

The altar area of the church was decorated with two spiral candelabra with blue lighted tapers, decked with lemon foliage garlands. White satin bows marked the family pews.

Maid of honor was Miss Debbie Abbott, with Gina and Patty Luquette, sisters of the bride, serving as junior bridesmaids. They wore identical gowns of blue dotted swiss.

Mike Hines was best man and Edwin McBride and Jerry Mariner were groomsmen.

Ushers were Paul Blake and Burt Ronhaus.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal gown of Chantilly lace over bridal taffeta designed with a high rounded neckline, and empire waist enhanced by a wide satin sash tied in a Dior bow in back. Long bishop sleeves and a semi-bell skirt complimented the gown. Her mantilla veil, bordered in matching lace, fell to a sweeping chapel length train from a satin coif. She carried a bouquet of white rose buds and carnations.

A reception followed the ceremony at the Canyon Community Center. The table was centered with an arrangement of blue and white carnations accented by deep blue bachelor buttons and blue candles, and a three tiered cake with blue rosettes.

Assisting at the reception were the bride's grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Beasley, Longview, Miss Diane Harp, and Miss Valery Decker.

The bride and groom are both graduates of Canyon High School, and are at home in Amarillo.

A rehearsal dinner was given at Sutphens by the groom.

The bride was honored at a miscellaneous shower in the home of Mrs. George Umberson. Other hostesses were Mesdames Joe Abbott, John Childs, Myron Dees, Jimmy Janssen, and Ron Kershen.

Ceremony Unites Powell-Burrell

Nancy Lee Powell became the bride of John Andrew Burrell, in a ceremony held Oct. 6, at Southwest Amarillo Church of Christ, with Dr. Everett Blanton, Canyon, officiating.

Mr. and Mrs. William Powell, Longmont, Colo., are the bride's parents.

The groom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Glynn Blanton, Canyon.

Mrs. Jim Barth, Longmont, Colo., and Mrs. Paul Pape, Amarillo, sisters of the bride were matrons of honor. Miss Betty Thomas, Oklahoma City, and Miss Carla Williams, Amarillo, served as maids of honor. The matrons of honor wore floor length gowns of light green bridal satin overlaid with white lace threaded with matching satin ribbon. Identical gowns in yellow were worn by the maids of honor. Each attendant carried a single long-stemmed yellow mum.

Best man was David Burrell, brother of the groom, Canyon. Serving as groomsmen were Fred Wilson, Amarillo, Mike Blanton, Abilene, and Pat Blanton, Amarillo.

Ushers were Bruce Powell, Longmont, Colo., brother of the bride, Guy Whitfield and Darby Laird, Amarillo, and Wilbur Jones, Vega.

Chris Powell, brother of the bride, Longmont Colo., was ringbearer and Miss Melissa Warpula, Amarillo was flower girl. Paul Pape, Amarillo was soloist.

The bride wore a formal gown of polyester organza with an empire bodice of cotton Nottingham lace trimmed with white satin ribbon and squared neckline. Long sleeves of organza were caught at the wrist in a deep cuff of matching lace. The full skirt was enhanced by a chapel length train trimmed with lace and ribbon and featured a deep hem of Nottingham lace threaded with satin ribbon. Her three-quarter length veil bordered in lace threaded with ribbon fell from a headpiece of lace medallions and looped ribbon. She carried a small cascade bouquet of white carnations and yellow roses with a white Bible.

The bride is a 1972 graduate of Agua Fria High School, Phoenix, Ariz. and moved to Amarillo in June of 1972. She was employed by Tradewinds Airport.

The groom is a 1970 Canyon High School graduate and attended West Texas State University. He is presently employed in farming with his father.

The couple will be at home in Amarillo.

Pleasantview Club Has Luncheon Meet

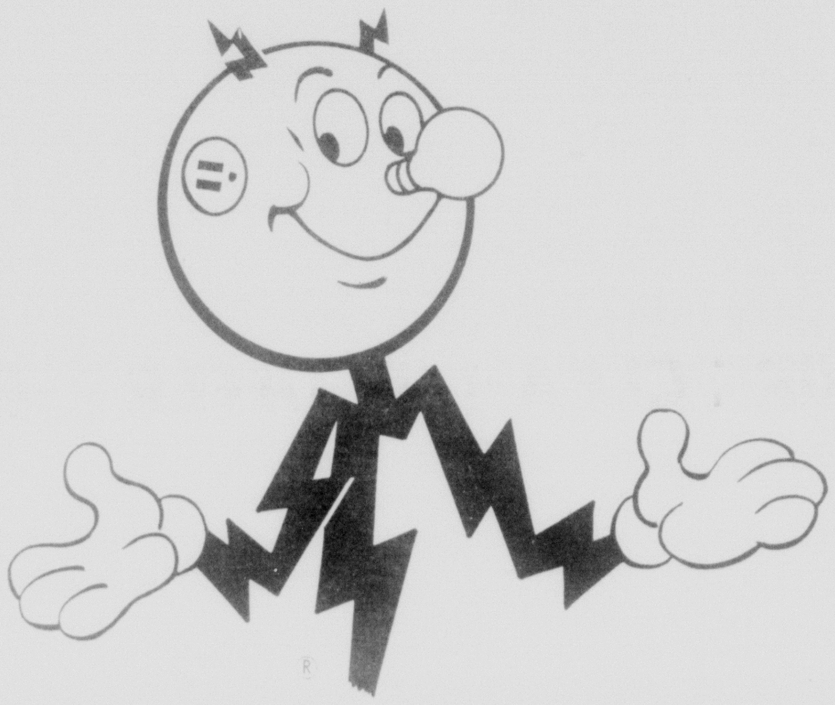

The Pleasantview Home Demonstration Club met last week in the home of Mrs. Jean Wright for a luncheon meeting.

Discussions in regard to participating in the Halloween Carnival were the order of business, presided over by Mrs. Joe Rice, president. Other business was the reading and acceptance of the constitution and by-laws.

Fifteen members and two guests were in attendance.

Miss Karen Louise Malzahn

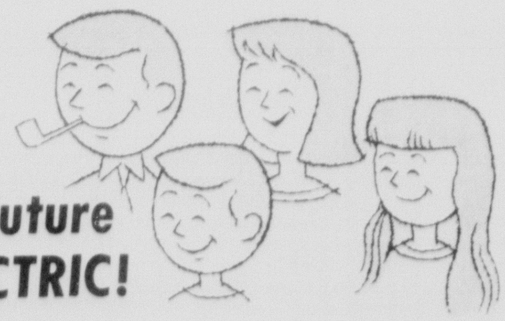

more for your money...

Thrifty homeowners do a lot of thinking about the way they spend their dollars to operate their homes. That's why more and more homeowners are taking a good look at electricity. Thousands of our customers are already heating their homes with electricity. They've found, through experience, that they get their money's worth. Drapes and furnishings stay clean longer and repainting doesn't have to be done so often . . . and that's saving dollars.

And, when you consider that you get full value for your electric dollar — 100% use out of every kilowatt-electricity becomes mighty attractive, not only in the home, but for industry, business, and agriculture as well!

Who is the "average" woman worker? What factors influence her to work today and what prompted her to work 50 years ago? How has her influence been felt?

To get the answers to these and similar questions, the Women's Bureau of the U.S. Department of Labor went back to their records to see how the working woman of today differs from her counterpart of 50 years ago.

Here is what the study shows, reports the Institute of Life Insurance:

During the last 50 years, the percentage of women in the labor force rose from 23 per cent in 1920 to over 43 per cent in 1971.

The profile of the average woman worker has changed considerably over this period. In 1920, she was 28 years old, single, a factory worker, supporting herself or contributing to the family household. The range of other occupations available to her was limited to mainly low-skilled clerical jobs, household labor, and farm work.

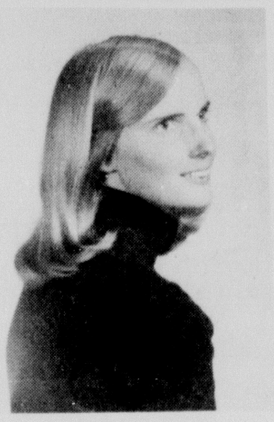

The most likely woman to be working today? She is 39 years old, married and may be found in any of some 479 individual occupations. She is also better educated than her working sister in the 1920's. Today, more than two out of three women workers have at least a high school education and one out of ten is a college graduate. Fifty years ago only 20 out of every 100 girls completed high school and only two out of 100 graduated from college.

As for the marital status of today's women workers, almost 60 per cent are married and living with their husbands. Among the rest, more than 20 per cent are widowed, divorced, or separated from their husbands.

Many also have children under 18 years of age. About 12.7 million of the women in the labor force did in March, 1972.

The contributions of a working wife today are extremely important to many families, often raising household incomes above the poverty level or from a low to middle range.

Besides an extra paycheck, another important contribution she often makes, points out the Institute, is to make the financial security of her family. Among the almost 20 million working women who are married, a great many have additional life insurance and health insurance benefits, paid sick leave and pensions.

Chi Upsilon Chap Of Beta Sigma Phi Has Model Meeting

The Chi Upsilon Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi met recently in the home of Mrs. Ann Cornelius, acting president, for the annual Model Meeting. Guest speaker for the meeting was Mrs. Claudia Stewart, a former model, who presented a program on Poise and Charm.

Discussions concerning the yearly scrapbook and the Area Convention to be held in Hereford Oct. 21, were the order of business.

For the benefit of the new and prospective members, Mrs. Nell Sims reviewed the plans and events for the coming year.

The door prize by Mrs. Johnetta Clements was won by Mrs. Ann Cornelius.

Hostess was Mrs. Ann Cornelius, assisted by Mrs. Shirley Stevens. They served shrimp cocktails and hors d'oeuvre to the following members: Mesdames Jerry Rozell, Nell Sims, Nell Haws, Sue Michael, Shirley Stevens, Liz Thompson, Ann Cornelius, and Johnetta Clements.

Special guests were Mrs. Mary Ann Bridges and Mrs. Rene Matthews.

CJHS Honor Society Installs 50

Fifty Canyon Junior High School students were installed as members of the National Junior Honor Society in ceremonies conducted Tuesday evening in the CJHS Auditorium.

Selection was made by the faculty on the basis of scholarship, citizenship, service, leadership and character, said Mrs. Ruby Fatheree, CJHS counsellor.

To be eligible for membership, students must have an overall average of 90 and be ranked in the upper-third percentile of their class, she said.

Highlighting installation services was a performance by the ninth-grade Mixed Choir under the direction of Doug McCause.

Dave Corley, CJHS principal, delivered the keynote address and administered the oath to new society members. Mrs. Fatheree and Mrs. Dorothy McClure made the presentations of pins and Jonathan Hull, president of Canyon chapter 301 of the NJHS, served as moderator for the services. Susan Bonifield, secretary-treasurer of the society, presented the invocation.

A reception for new members and their guests was held after the program in the CJHS Activity Center.

Also, Craig Howard, Don Howard, Jonathan Hull, Brenda Johnson, Deedy Johnson, Mike Johnson, Bruce Kennedy, Charles Land, Christi LeVeque, Sharon Lindemann, Deann Marston, Timothy Martin, Tracy Martin, Brent May, Roger Oliver, Brenda Plain, Kristi Quammen and Randall Ray.

Lenn Schmidt, Karen Sommer, Ollie Sparkman, Arthur Speer, Cora Stallard, Shirley Tomes, Rhonda Waide, Gary Ward, John Westberry, Drew Williams, Janice Williams, James Wilson, Pam Woolsey and Bryan Young.

Band Parents Sponsor Student Poster Contest

The Canyon Band Parents are trying to "sell" a house and they're offering prizes to public school students who can create the best posters advertising the place, which is — by the way — haunted.

The Halloween spook house, to be located at 23rd St. and 8th Ave. (formerly Porter's Barbecue), will open its eerily-creeking doors for business on Oct. 26, 27, 29, 30 and 31. Admission will be 50 cents.

The floor plan includes a macabre mortuary replete with grown-up ghouls, a cemetery with lots of spaced-out spooks and a sinister-looking laboratory featuring its own diabolically mad scientist.

Students entering the poster contest can use their own imagination in promoting the haunted house, a spokesman for the Canyon Band Parents said.

Winners will be in two categories, including a third to sixth grade division and a seventh to twelfth grade division. First prizes of $5 each will go to winners in each category. Second and third place prizes have not yet been announced.

Entries should be turned in by Friday. Students are asked to submit their posters at the main offices of their respective schools.

Notice!

We are not personally soliciting donations from local merchants for the Umbarger German Sausage Festival this year.

Any contributions from those wishing to help us make this annual affair a success would be deeply appreciated as always.
